America's Leading Rental Home Companies Congratulate President-Elect Joe Biden

Washington, D.C. (December 15, 2020) – The National Rental Home Council (NRHC) and its members, representing the leading companies in America's single-family rental home industry, congratulate Joe Biden on his victory in the 2020 presidential election.

The single-family rental home industry looks forward to working with President-Elect Biden to provide Americans with access to an expanded array of housing opportunities. As the realities of working and schooling from home bring new urgency and unprecedented demand to the need for quality, affordable housing, the nation's single-family rental home companies are responding. "Single-family rental homes offer a lifestyle with a range of conveniences and community amenities for families who value flexibility, affordability, and full-service resident care. As the new administration considers options to expand access to the housing market, NRHC and the single-family rental home industry are eager to offer support," said David Howard, executive director of NRHC.

Representing more than half of the rental housing in the United States, single-family rental homes play a vital role in providing safe, well-located homes for Americans and their families. "The member companies of NRHC have delivered this year on behalf of their residents, properties, and communities. We are enthusiastic to work with the new administration to demonstrate how single-family rentals can be a solution for the challenges facing the housing market," said Howard. "In the months ahead, NRHC will continue to advocate for sound policies that allow housing providers to offer a greater range of opportunities for Americans in search of quality, affordable housing."
