

National Rental Home Council Response to White House Executive Order

We're proud to provide quality housing and outstanding service to families who rent, including military families, veterans, nurses, teachers, firefighters, law enforcement, and other hard-working Americans all across the country.

For many families, single-family rentals provide stability and space for family formation and a launchpad to homeownership. In recent weeks, independent experts and news outlets have made one thing clear: professional single-family rental providers own far less than 1% of homes and are not the cause of America's housing shortage.

Our country needs more housing investment, so we look forward to working with the Administration and other policymakers to expand rental options and create real pathways to homeownership. We will continue to do our part by preserving existing homes and building new homes to expand the nation's housing supply.

-NRHC Spokesperson

The National Rental Home Council (NRHC) is dedicated to raising the standards for rental housing. NRHC serves as the trade association for the single-family rental and build-to-rent home industry. NRHC members include owner-operators, builders, vendors, and service providers of single-family rental homes across the country.
